About Our Company - A Tradition of Accuracy and Enjoyment

Revell® and Monogram® companies have been entertaining, inspiring, and educating model builders for over 70 years. Revell group brands are a testament to the popularity of detailed plastic model kits that are affordably priced.

Launched in 1943, Revell initially produced a wide range of products, including train sets, scale buildings and “action pull toys” recreating some of America’s most popular automobiles. However, the brand found its niche with a line of fast-building “Highway Pioneers” plastic model car kits in the early 1950s. After their success, Revell focused exclusively on making models that were as authentic as they were enjoyable.

When Monogram was founded in 1945, the industry was revolutionized with models featuring pre-fabricated wood parts for easier assembly. Ships and airplanes were the brand’s most popular subjects. In the early 1950s, Monogram shifted gears to all-plastic construction with a lineup of car kits. They sold like gangbusters, establishing Monogram as the brand to beat for automotive models.

Revell and Monogram were competitors for the next three decades, providing the industry with a rare, friendly rivalry. In 1986, both brands merged. In 2007, Revell was purchased by Hobbico, one of the world’s largest manufacturers, distributors and retailers of model hobby products. It marked the start of an exciting new era.

Today, Revell is committed to creating new and exciting products for its customers. Most recently we are introducing our newest line, Revell Junior Kit®, which allows children as young as age 5 to assemble and dis-assemble for hours of creative play.

We continue to develop new SnapTite® Build & Play™ model kits with lights and sounds features, in conjunction with popular licensed entities including Star Wars™. Revell continues to be the #1 Star Wars model kit licensor in the world. This year we are introducing new Scooby Doo™ and Halo video game licensed model kits. Revell continues development of traditional paint and glue plastic model kits as well.

Revell manufactures model kits suitable for all ages. We are proud to carry on the tradition of accuracy and provide a challenging, and enjoyable pastime for all model hobby enthusiasts.

About the Revell brands:

Model kits produced by the Monogram company. Monogram merged with Revell in 1986 and the model kits are still released under that brand today. Monogram continues to be a name that the model building enthusiast, as well as hobby dealers, can depend on for unique subject matter and high quality model kits.

These kits feature recessed panel lines and bagged clear parts for added protection. They include multiple sets of authentically matched silkscreen decals along with a comprehensive instruction booklet containing historical facts and detailed finishing techniques.

Classic vintage kits created originally by the Renwal® company, advertised as “Accurately scaled from U.S. Army Ordnance Blueprints”. The molds have been owned by Revell since 1976 and have been reissued previously. These are re-released as part of the SSP line.

Once Ed started winning awards at car shows, he caught the eye of Revell, who thought they would make a great subjects for model kits. Revell felt that Ed needed a catchy nickname. Selected Subjects Program

Look for the gold SSP logo on the package! These model kits are produced in limited quantities only and released in the original retro packaging. They include Renwal and Monogram subjects. Kits in the Selected Subjects Program are announced throughout the year and will not appear in the catalog. Visit revell.com or follow Revell USA on social media to get announcements of newly released products.

Available for a limited time only, order before they run out!

What does "scale" mean? Scale = Size. A real 1969 Camaro Z-28 is 25 times larger than a 1/25 scale model kit. Larger kits are generally more expensive and have more parts, requiring more work area and assembly time. See the photos below to see comparisons of the the most common scales for plastic model vehicles and aircraft.

Build the model... and take it home.

There is no doubt that model building is a fun activity for children. Revell's Make 'n Take program is simple: Revell SnapTite® model kits are available for sale in multiple quantities per carton. All the kits in the carton are the same so all participants at your event will build the same kit.

Snap together construction means no glue or paint is required. There is a variety of kits to choose from. Carton contents also include a promotional poster and event planning guide. Additional Parts Replacement Policies and Conditions:

Our policy is to have replacement parts available for up to 3 years after an item's last production date or until supplies last, whichever comes first.

If a kit is missing an extensive number of pieces, or is severely damaged, the first course of action is to return the kit to the place of purchase.

If the vendor does not accept returns, we may request that the complete kit be returned to Revell for review, at your expense. If it is determined that missing parts or kit damage is Revell's fault, the kit will be replaced, at Revell's expense, with a similar kit. If it is determined that the kit met all of our quality expectations, Revell will return the original kit to the sender, with no additional responsibility on Revell's side.

If the kit was purchased from a reputable retailer like those found on our web site and, after removing shrink wrap, a part is missing or broken, Revell will provide a reasonable number of replacement parts at no charge. The Revell Parts Dept. will determine if any part(s) order has exceeded a reasonable amount. Additionally we may request that you send us the UPC panel from your box and/or the sales receipt as proof of purchase for the parts requested.

Revell reserves the right to modify or refuse any part(s) order.

Technical and Model Building Support:

Our tech support phone line is available to assist you with your model kit building questions. You will need to leave a message and our tech manager will return your call. Please note that this line is not for replacement part requests. If you need a replacement part please use one of the two methods above. Our tech support number is 1-800-833-3570.
